Beloit City Council Selects President, Vice President

April 16, 2024 – The Beloit City Council elected Kevin D. Leavy to serve as council president and Kevin Day to service as council vice president during its annual organization meeting Tuesday night.

Leavy is employed as a food service director for Aramark, where he has worked for over 20 years. Leavy, who has held past roles as president and vice president of the council, is also actively involved in his church. He also serves on the Rock County Board of Supervisors. Leavy served on the Beloit City Council from 2003-2014 and from 2016-present.

"I would like to thank the council for selecting me as the next president," Leavy said. "Thank you Councilor Dunkin for her leadership. I am looking forward to continuing to move the city forward with my colleagues, continuing to listen to residents, and working to complete city initiatives."

Day is the vice president of business development for CCI, where he has worked since 2012. He has over 30 years' experience in the construction management field. In addition to serving on the council, he has also served on other Beloit-area non profit boards and volunteer throughout the community. Day was first elected to the Beloit City Council in April 2022.

"I am honored to be vice president and appreciate the support from my councilors and Beloit residents. I look forward to helping Kevin Leavy lead as council president," Day said.

Leavy, Day, Markese Terrell and Marty Densch were sworn into office for their two-year terms after being elected to office on April 2.

Past Council President Regina Dunkin was honored for her service with a plaque Monday night. She chose to not seek re-election to another city council term.
